

AMENDMENTS TO THE CLAIMS

Claims 1, 2, 13-15, and 33-35 have been amended, new claims 36-51 have been added, and withdrawn claims 3-12 and 16-33 have been cancelled. A listing of the claims follows and replaces all prior listing of the claims.

LISTING OF THE CLAIMS

Claim 1 (Currently amended): A traditional ~~Chinese~~ chinese medicine composition having preparation for anti-tumor properties, comprising:
~~characterized in that it is composed of following parts by weight of materials:~~

- 1 part by weight of hydnocarpus;[[,]]
- 0.8-1.4 parts by weight of cochinchina momordica seed;[[,]]
- 0.5-1.1 parts by weight of pangolin scales;[[,]]
- 0.8-1.3 parts by weight of rhubarb[[,]]; and
- 1-1.5 parts by weight of licorice root.

Claim 2 (Currently amended): The traditional ~~Chinese~~ chinese medicine composition preparation according to claim 1, characterized in that wherein a dose of the composition is dosages of all materials are 1 part by weight thereof.

Claims 3-12 (Cancelled).

Claim 13 (Currently amended): ~~Use of the A process for treating a patient afflicted with cancer, comprising:~~ providing a traditional Chinese medicine composition preparation for preparing anti-cancer drug according to claim 1; and administering to the patient an effective amount of the traditional Chinese medicine composition.

Claim 14 (Currently amended): ~~Use of the traditional Chinese medicine preparation~~
The process according to claim 13, wherein the traditional Chinese medicine composition is characterized in that the mentioned anti-cancer drugs refer to therapeutic for cancerous tumors which are at least one of drugs of tumors of digestive tract tumors, lung tumors, and cervix uteri tumors.

Claim 15 (Currently amended): ~~Use of the traditional Chinese medicine preparation~~
The process according to claim 14, wherein the traditional Chinese medicine
composition is characterized in that Anti-cancer drugs on digestive tract tumor
mentioned refer to therapeutic for digestive tract tumors including at least one of drugs
of gastric carcinoma, intestinal cancer and liver cancer.

Claim 16-32 (Cancelled).

Claim 33 (Currently amended): ~~Use of the~~ A process for treating a patient afflicted with cancer, comprising:

providing the traditional Chinese medicine composition preparation for preparing anti-cancer drug according to claim 2; and administering to the patient an effective amount of the traditional Chinese

medicine composition.

Claim 34 (Currently amended): ~~Use of the traditional Chinese medicine preparation~~
~~The process~~ according to claim 33, wherein the traditional Chinese medicine
composition is characterized in that the mentioned anti-cancer drugs refer to therapeutic for cancerous tumors which are at least one of drugs of tumors of digestive tract tumors, lung tumors, and cervix uteri tumors.

Claim 35 (Currently amended): ~~Use of the traditional Chinese medicine preparation~~
~~The process~~ according to claim 34, wherein the traditional Chinese medicine
composition is characterized in that Anti-cancer drugs on digestive tract tumor
~~mentioned refer to therapeutic~~ for digestive tract tumors including at least one of drugs
of gastric carcinoma, intestinal cancer and liver cancer.

Claim 36 (New): A traditional Chinese medicine composition having anti-tumor properties, consisting essentially of:

- 1 part by weight of hydnocarpus;
- 0.8-1.4 parts by weight of cochinchina momordica seed;
- 0.5-1.1 parts by weight of pangolin scales;
- 0.8-1.3 parts by weight of rhubarb; and
- 1-1.5 parts by weight of licorice root.

Claim 37 (New): The traditional Chinese medicine composition according to claim 36, wherein a dose of the composition is 1 part by weight thereof.

Claim 38 (New): A process for treating a patient afflicted with cancer, comprising:
providing a traditional Chinese medicine composition according to claim 36; and administering to the patient an effective amount of the traditional Chinese medicine composition.

Claim 39 (New): The process according to claim 38, wherein the traditional Chinese medicine composition is therapeutic for cancerous tumors which are at least one of digestive tract tumors, lung tumors, and cervix uteri tumors.

Claim 40 (New): The process according to claim 39, wherein the traditional Chinese medicine composition is therapeutic for digestive tract tumors including at least one of gastric carcinoma, intestinal cancer and liver cancer.

Claim 41 (New): A process for treating a patient afflicted with cancer, comprising:
providing the traditional Chinese medicine composition according to claim 37;
and
administering to the patient an effective amount of the traditional Chinese
medicine composition.

Claim 42 (New): The process according to claim 41, wherein the traditional Chinese medicine composition is therapeutic for cancerous tumors which are at least one of digestive tract tumors, lung tumors, and cervix uteri tumors.

Claim 43 (New): The process according to claim 42, wherein the traditional Chinese medicine composition is therapeutic for digestive tract tumors including at least one of gastric carcinoma, intestinal cancer and liver cancer.

Claim 44 (New): A traditional Chinese medicine composition having anti-tumor properties, consisting of:

- 1 part by weight of hydnocarpus;
- 0.8-1.4 parts by weight of cochinchina momordica seed;
- 0.5-1.1 parts by weight of pangolin scales;
- 0.8-1.3 parts by weight of rhubarb; and
- 1-1.5 parts by weight of licorice root.

Claim 45 (New): The traditional Chinese medicine composition according to claim 44, wherein a dose of the composition is 1 part by weight thereof.

Claim 46 (New): A process for treating a patient afflicted with cancer, comprising:
providing a traditional Chinese medicine composition according to claim 44; and administering to the patient an effective amount of the traditional Chinese medicine composition.

Claim 47 (New): The process according to claim 46, wherein the traditional Chinese medicine composition is therapeutic for cancerous tumors which are at least one of digestive tract tumors, lung tumors, and cervix uteri tumors.

Claim 48 (New): The process according to claim 47, wherein the traditional Chinese medicine composition is therapeutic for digestive tract tumors including at least one of gastric carcinoma, intestinal cancer and liver cancer.

Claim 49 (New): A process for treating a patient afflicted with cancer, comprising:
providing the traditional Chinese medicine composition according to claim 45;
and
administering to the patient an effective amount of the traditional Chinese medicine composition.

Claim 50 (New): The process according to claim 49, wherein the traditional Chinese medicine composition is therapeutic for cancerous tumors which are at least one of digestive tract tumors, lung tumors, and cervix uteri tumors.

Claim 51 (New): The process according to claim 50, wherein the traditional Chinese medicine composition is therapeutic for digestive tract tumors including at least one of gastric carcinoma, intestinal cancer and liver cancer.